RESPONSE TO RESTRICTION REQUIREMENT

Responsive to the action mailed September 8, 2003, Applicants provisionally elect the invention of Group I, Claim 14, drawn to a neisserial inner core reactive with the B5 antibody eliciting functional antibodies against strains within the pathogenic neisserial species, with linking Claims 1-13, 15-18, and 21 to be joined with Group I. The election is respectively made with traverse.

In particular, with respect to Arumughan et al. (EP 0941738), we note that even Claim 1 of the patent '738 specifies "an antigenic conjugate," so that there is a carrier protein which is covalently bonded to the conserved portion of a lipopolysaccharide of a gram negative bacteria. Furthermore, this Claim 1 of patent '738 requires that the lipopolysaccharide comprises not only the inner core but also the lipid A portions of the lipopolysaccharide. This is in direct contrast to the Applicants' present invention, which requires the lipopolysaccharide core of the Neisseria spp. so that, at once, Applicants' invention is more restricted and, also, do not require conjugation. On this basis, we submit that Arumughan et al. (EP 0941738) is not novelty-destroying, and we request that the holding of lack of unity under PCT Rule 13.1 and 13.2 be withdrawn.
